

anger management being aware of your payoffs

This worksheet is a simple tool designed to assist you in developing your personal skills to better manage your current situation.

If you are having problems understanding the content of the worksheet or with the topic and would like further support, please call a MensLine Australia counsellor on 1300 78 99 78.

Things to think about

Payoffs are hidden reasons why we keep doing things that are damaging or unhelpful. If you often use anger to try to resolve situations, there may be a payoff behind your response. This worksheet is to help you to identify these payoffs and how to change them for the better.

Below are some of the hidden reasons, or payoffs, why people don't change. There may be others.

1. Feeling Powerful

The quick hit of adrenaline that comes from blame, violence or hurting others. Wanting to have power over another person.

2. Self-pity

Indulging in feeling sorry for yourself. Feeling like you are the victim. If I am the victim, I have a right to retaliate.

3. Self-righteousness

Needing to be 'right'. Feeling that it is a weakness to admit you are wrong.

4. Scared of being vulnerable/ insecure

Not admitting that you are sad, afraid or helpless - so you get angry instead.

Generally, people hold onto negative payoffs because they are missing a positive quality, feeling or experience. For instance, if you have a payoff of needing to feel powerful, what you may really need is a sense of personal confidence. As an example, if people are laughing at you, you may choose to feel powerful by throwing a punch. However, if you were personally confident enough, you would ignore the comment or laugh it off.

Exercise

Step 1: Identify which payoff you use most.

Think back to a recent angry moment you have had, with the idea of payoffs in mind. Reflect upon why you felt the anger and what the main payoff was. There may be more than one payoff. However, choose the first one that comes to mind.

Step 2: What is the antidote to your payoff?

Now you have identified your payoff, look for the positive quality, feeling or experience that you are really wanting. An example has been given, but you might like to add your own.

FEELING POWERFUL:

Are you really looking for personal confidence? Or ...

---

---

---

---

SELF PITY:

Are you seeking love? Or ...

---

---

---

---

1300 78 99 78
www.mensline.org.au

Proudly supported by

Talk it over
Mens Line
AUSTRALIA

MensLine Australia is a professional telephone support, information and referral service for men, specialising in family and relationship concerns.

SELF RIGHTEOUS:

Are you looking for a sense of self-esteem? Or ...

---

---

---

---

INSECURE:

Are you really needing to feel safe? Or ...

---

---

---

---

Step 3: Finding ways to feel better about yourself

What can you do to create the positive quality, feeling or experience that does not require the angry payoff? Make sure it is achievable and realistic. See the worksheets on self care.

Example: I can find personal confidence by training for the half marathon.

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

Attempt this action this week.

This worksheet is part of a series on anger management, communication and self care. You may find it useful to complete other worksheets in this series. For more information or assistance, call MensLine Australia on 1300 78 99 78.

1300 78 99 78
www.mensline.org.au

Proudly supported by

Talk it over
Mens Line
AUSTRALIA

MensLine Australia is a professional telephone support, information and referral service for men, specialising in family and relationship concerns.